About Institutional Credibility

Distance learning is the fastest growing edge of adult higher education, and the most widely preferred method of study for individuals serving in Christian ministry. Most schools are now offering degree programs through distance education. However, with the popularity and acceptance of distance education, there are also abuses by college degree mills and substandard programs promoting inexpensive degrees for very little work (such as reading a few popular books and writing brief reports).

Therefore, many individuals and ministry leaders are skeptical of distance education schools that are not accredited. This is understandable but unfortunate. The truth is, there are high quality unaccredited schools that are of exceptionally good quality. These institutions may offer advantages that accredited schools cannot.

High quality unaccredited schools are usually unaccredited for one of the following reasons: #1 They do not accept government funding and therefore do not need to be accredited; #2 They are currently working toward accreditation (which can take up to 5-10 years). #3 They wish to keep their tuition as low as possible so that they can serve a wider group of students; #4 They have objections to some of the accreditation restrictions. Of course, degree mills and substandard schools often quote the same reasons as a motive to cover unethical and even illegal money making schemes.

On the other hand, high quality unaccredited schools which exercise academic excellence are often recognized by other institutions. If the school is so recognized, then prospective students, current students, graduates, and ministry leaders have good reason to be accepting and respectful of credits and degrees earned at these institutions. IFCA – DI will be such a program.

We've been asked the question, "Does a Diploma from IFCA Discipleship Institute have credibility?" In short, the answer is absolutely! In assessing the credibility of any institution, we suggest that you review the experience and education of the members of the organization. A ministry diploma from IFCA-DI has been recognized by many churches and ministries and we are constantly seeing new ways to gain relationships, memberships, and affiliations which will only enhance our credibility.

Tuition & Fees

For the believer, we understand that God has called us to stewardship. The truth is, we are merely stewards of God's property. He can choose to entrust us to manage as much or as little as He wills. However, in every case we are never to assume ownership because: "The earth is the Lord's, and all its fullness, the world and those who dwell therein." Psalm 24:1

Consistently recognizing God's ownership can be difficult. It is easy to believe intellectually that God owns all you have but still live as if this were not true. Our society suggest an opposing view. Everything around us – the media, education, even the law – says that what you possess you own. Genuinely acknowledging God's ownership requires nothing less than a new way of thinking for many of us.

It is with this mindset that we have come up with our philosophy for tuition for IFCA – DI. Our goal is that you would receive a high quality education, but at the same time you would be investing in the advancement of the Kingdom of God. Being a part of IFCA – DI you can be confident that you're education goals and your stewardship is glorifying God.

A Message from the Education Director

Dr. Alan James Schrader
IFCA Education Director

I feel honored and blessed to serve the LORD in the Education Department of IFCA. It is sobering to think that an incredible privilege has been bestowed upon all of us, the call of God to ministry. It is marvelous to consider that a sovereign God desires to use us with all our weaknesses to advance the message of the Kingdom of God and to display His power, “But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the Excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us” (1 Cor. 4:7). It is humbling to think we have been called for such a time as this.

If you are looking for an educational institution that will passionately equip you to do the ministry work to which God has called you, then IFCA – DI is the place for you. IFCA-Discipleship Institute will not only provide you with a theological education that is affordable, but will also provide you with Spirit-filled, excellent academic instructions, combined with practical hands-on ministry opportunities.
